Investors, flippers and builders, this is the one to run your numbers on. A mid-century home on fee simple land in Aiea Heights, an established neighborhood of single-family homes. The home has the bones of its era: a concrete block lower level, a wood-frame home above, a hip roof, jalousie windows, pine floors and wood-panel walls. And below it all is something you rarely find in Hawaii: a basement, with garage space and unfinished room to work with. Mature trees shade the lot. The house needs everything. The roof over the front entry has given
