Old Kihei, the way it used to be. Beneath huge old mango trees, this gracious 1938 beach house recalls an earlier Hawai'i of open lanais, trade winds and evenings spent watching the sun sink into the Pacific. Completely remodeled in 2006, the 2BR/2BA, 1,156 SF home retains its Territorial-era character with soaring gables and post-and-pier construction, while an airy great room and travertine floors bring it comfortably into the present. A 252 SF covered lanai spans the entire ocean side of the home—made for morning coffee, shared meals and year-round sunsets,
